Butler Promoted to VP, Product Development & Technology

M&S Technologies announced the promotion of Kevin Butler to Vice President, Product Development & Technology. According to M&S, the company has made several strides forward that wouldn't have been possible without Butler's expertise, guidance and direction. These include the growth of the Smart System line of products, development of a Clinical Trial Suite of products, which have been approved for measuring ETDRS visual acuity and contrast sensitivity as endpoints in Phase III FDA clinical trials, and several new products in development that are expected to come to market within 18 months.

Kevin Butler

Also: The M&S Technologies website has been redesigned for mobile responsiveness.