

“Is Optometry for Me?” and “Why Academic Optometry?” are the first two podcasts in a series that ASCO is distributing. The series will cover various topics pertaining to the profession and ASCO member institutions. Each podcast will be available on iTunes as well as on ASCO’s YouTube channel and website.

- Dr. Michael Bacigalupi, Assistant Dean for Student Affairs at Nova Southeastern University College of Optometry, and Sunnie Ewing, Student Recruitment Director at Southern College of Optometry, share their insights via an interview for “Is Optometry for Me?”

- “Why Academic Optometry?” features Dr. Jeffrey D. Perotti, Clinical Associate Professor at Indiana University School of Optometry, and Dr. Nicole Putnam, Assistant Professor at Midwestern University Arizona College of Optometry.

If you have a suggestion for a future podcast topic, the Association would love to hear it. E-mail Kim O’Sullivan, Director, Communications, or call her at (301) 231-5944 ext. 3019.
